

SOCIAL MEDICINE

Topic 1.

1. Medical laws and patient's safety
2. Socially significant diseases and conditions:
 - Preterm labour
 - Sexually transmitted diseases
 - Infertility
 - Pregnancy in adolescent
3. Ethical framework for practice and professional life. Ethical considerations in Obstetrics and Gynecology. Ethical decision-making.
4. Mastering the principles of communication: partnership relationships, focusing on the priorities, needs and point of view of the patient, the principle of self-regulation.
5. The basic principles of educational work with patients.
6. The reasons for the emergence of communication barriers and overcoming communication barriers in the activities of medical professionals.

Self-studying

1. Measuring of the health of the population. Health information system
2. Demographic data. Demographic static. Population changes – demographic dynamics
3. Demographic trends and their implications for health and health care
4. Methods of verbal and non-verbal communication.
5. Formation of interpersonal communication skills (active listening, conducting conversations, types of questions, feedback). Methods of persuading patients to comply with the treatment regimen and adherence to it.