Speciality "General Medicine"

ACADEMIC DISCIPLINE "DERMATOVENEROLOGY" of the Therapeutic Module 2

Academic discipline outline	Methodology for examining patients with skin and sexually transmitted diseases. Etiology, clinical presentation, treatment of some skin and sexually transmitted diseases, and their prevention. Medical examination and rehabilitation of patients with skin and sexually transmitted diseases.
Resulting skills	Specialized competence. To apply knowledge of clinical symptoms, to be proficient in methods of patient examination, diagnosis and differential diagnosis, to understand the principles of treatment and prevention, to formulate a clinical diagnosis for dermatovenerological diseases, tuberculosis, and major neurological and infectious diseases.
Learning outcomes	A student must: know: etiology and pathogenesis of the most common infectious and non-infectious diseases of skin and sexually transmitted infections; classification, clinical presentations, diagnostics and differential diagnostics of the most common infectious and non-infectious diseases of skin and sexually transmitted infections; methods of prevention and treatment of the most common infectious and noninfectious diseases of skin and sexually transmitted infections; rules of medical ethics and deontology in dermatovenereology; be able to: identify primary and secondary skin lesions; plan and carry out the complex examination of dermatovenereological patient; prescribe treatment, urgent aid included, to patients with skin diseases and sexually transmitted infections; master: principal methods of clinical, laboratory, instrumental examination applied in dermatology; modern methods of general and topical treatment of skin diseases and sexually transmitted infections; methods of prevention of skin diseases and sexually transmitted infections.

Semester(s)	6,7 semesters
Prerequisite	Human Anatomy Histology, Cytology, Embryology Normal Physiology Pathological Anatomy Pathological Physiology Microbiology, Virology, Immunology Pharmacology Propaedeutics of Internal Diseases General Surgery
Credit value	3 credits
Academic hours	190 academic hours, of which: 116 class hours
Forms of midterm attestation	Test Examination